

Dr. Atiya Khan is a strategic community leader, lifetime learner, and an influential and recognized figure with a desire to continue to serve through leadership, continual empowerment, championing equality and freedom, and uplifting the Pakistani and Pakistani-American communities locally, nationally, and internationally.

She is a highly accomplished and extraordinary professional leader with a passion for social and patient activism, community leadership and doing what is best for patient and community causes. Dr. Atiya's career has spanned over several decades. She is primarily a doctor of pediatrics and pediatric oncology at Howard County General Hospital and has served on the faculty at John Hopkins Hospital. She has also published multiple papers as well as a book chapter on brain tumors while at Georgetown and Johns Hopkins. She has been voted as the Best Pediatrician in Howard Country as well as one of American Registry's Top Doctors and has been awarded a lifetime achievement award by Association of Physicians of Pakistani Descent of North America (APPNA).

Outside the field of medicine, Dr. Atiya is a well-respected humanitarian and social worker who possesses extensive social, professional and community connections, contacts and networks in Pakistani community through active participation, advocacy and leadership involvement in numerous groups. She has received numerous accolades from organizations such as Human Development Foundation, Pakistani Society of North Carolina, King Edward Medical College Alumni Association of North America, Association of Physicians of Pakistani Descent of North America (APPNA), and Governor of Maryland, among many others.

Dr. Atiya has advanced knowledge and experience with Board of Directors, non-profit organizations, and workflow and business operations. Previously, she has served on the boards of Human Development Foundation, Aligarh Association, and Association of Pakistani Physicians of North America.

In her leisure time, Dr. Atiya is fond of Urdu literature and has translated professional and literary books into the Urdu language. She has also authored a biography novel showcasing the celebrated and well known Urdu poet, Ahmad Faraz, who has also dedicated books in Dr. Atiya's name. She continues to promote Pakistani literature and culture through sponsoring major and key Pakistani writers and poets.